Aqualogreference Books [EBOOK]

African Mouthbrooding Cichlids. The vast majority of the species discussed here originate from the Great Lakes of the African Rift Valley, namely Lake Tanganyika (around 670 km long and 50 wide), Lake Malawi (around 560 km long and up to 80 wide), and Lake Victoria (around 340 km long and 250 wide). They are members of the family Cichlidae, and share the common feature that the females alone brood the eggs and young in their mouths and sometimes look after the fry for a while after release.
