INTERPRETING THE VOICES. Sometimes voices talk in metaphors, riddles or emotional truths in the place of, or alongside, literal truths. It can be confusing or overwhelming to hear them talk in these ways, and some people find it useful to try and interpret what the voices are saying, or to find the hidden or metaphorical meaning behind the voices. For example, a voice saying that a bus is about to be attacked might not be telling the literal truth, but instead might be saying it 's feeling ...
